“Pour quel public ?

Toute personne qui souhaite mener une démarche de plaidoyer ou d'influence pour agir sur les déterminants sociaux de la santé, peu importe sa profession ou son milieu de travail : ministère, organisation non gouvernementale, réseau de la santé, association, ordre professionnel, organisme communautaire, etc.

Description :

Avez-vous déjà eu envie de changer les structures en place, mais de vous freiner aussitôt : « Je suis seul, personne ne m'écouterait », « Le plaidoyer nécessite un gros budget », ou encore « Le plaidoyer est un domaine spécialisé » ?

Et si vous aviez plus de pouvoir que vous ne le pensez ?

Le plaidoyer est une compétence clé en promotion de la santé et une stratégie puissante pour agir sur l'équité en santé.

Considérant l'intérêt grandissant pour cette pratique sur la scène francophone internationale, ce webinaire sera l'occasion de présenter un outil d'aide à la pratique développé par le RÉFIPS, Plaidoyer pour la santé, de reconsidérer certains mythes au sujet du plaidoyer et d'inspirer les participants et participantes à passer à l'action.

Présentation de :

- Sarah Chaput, coordonnatrice du Réseau francophone international pour la promotion de la santé (RÉFIPS), région des Amériques, et voix de la relève francophone en promotion de la santé”

The present and future of the Global Compacts

Date and Time: Tuesday, June 7 9:30 am - 3:30 pm

Cost: Free

Registration: <https://www.torontomu.ca/cerc-migration/events/2022/06/global-compact/>

Join CERC Migration for an international workshop convened by Anna Triandafyllidou, Younes Ahouga and Richa Shivakoti (all CERC Migration) and Binod Khadria (Jawaharlal Nehru University and visiting CERC Scholar of Excellence).

Practitioners extolled the adoption of the Global Compact for Migration (GCM) and the Global Compact for Refugees (GCR) in December 2018 as a critical milestone in migration and asylum governance. Yet to be truly considered a milestone, the two Compacts must overcome shortcomings: (1) the many competing priorities due to the divergent interests of the endorsing states, and (2) the lack of an enforcement mechanism that could hold states accountable.

This workshop aims to take stock of the manner in which the implementation of the GCM and the GCR addressed these shortcomings. Moreover, the workshop seeks to discuss the future of the two Compacts in the post-pandemic world. While the COVID-19 global pandemic as well as the Afghanistan and Ukraine crises stressed the need for global cooperation on migration, it also resulted in a range of challenges that could limit the relevance of the Global Compacts. As the states favoured imposing unilateral restraints on mobility through the pandemic, some sectors relying on circular temporary labour migration saw large, possibly unprecedented, restrictions in mobility and massive layoffs of migrant workers. The hypermobility that was foreseen earlier came to a complete standstill during the pandemic, resulting in crisis returns that therefore contradicted the GCM’s aim to facilitate safe, orderly and regular migration. On the other hand, the refugee emergencies proliferating around the world including for instance Venezuela or Central America, make the GCR all the more relevant and needed. The question of course arises are the two Global Compacts fit for purpose.

This workshop aims to address the following questions:

- How has the implementation of the GCM and GCR progressed since their adoption? What are the lessons learned? Have states been held accountable for not meeting their voluntary commitments?
- Have the regional reviews succeeded in building trust between the stakeholders and avoiding politicization of the implementation of the two Compacts?
- Particularly as regards to the GCM did the capacity building mechanism set up by the UN Network on Migration improve the implementation? Has the UN Network on Migration been able to speak in one voice?
- How will the global governance of migration and asylum change in the post-pandemic world? Are the two Compacts still fit for the purpose?
- Given the prominent role the non-state actors played during crisis return and reintegration, should their role evolve to permit greater contribution to deliberations on the global governance of migration and asylum?

POUR : TOUTE PERSONNE QUI SOUHAITE MENER UNE DÉMARCHÉ DE PLAIDOYER OU D'INFLUENCE POUR AGIR SUR LES DÉTERMINANTS SOCIAUX DE LA SANTÉ, PEU IMPORTE SA PROFESSION OU SON MILIEU DE TRAVAIL : MINISTÈRE, ORGANISATION NON GOUVERNEMENTALE, RÉSEAU DE LA SANTÉ, ASSOCIATION, ORDRE PROFESSIONNEL, ORGANISME COMMUNAUTAIRE, ETC .

8 juin 2022 12 h à 13 h (HAE) ou UTC-5

Au Canada, la pandémie de la Covid-19 a donné lieu à des innovations transformatives qui nous ont fait réaliser des bonds importants en télémédecine. En ce sens, les innovations technologiques qui permettent un virage de services de santé traditionnels en personne vers un modèle à distance se fait ressentir dans tous les territoires et toutes les provinces du pays. Elles représentent une solution tangible parmi la communauté du secteur de la santé qui doit transformer rapidement, et sans précédent, la façon dont les services de santé sont dispensés tout en tenant compte des mesures sanitaires imposées. Mais au-delà des mérites qu'on lui accorde en lien avec la gestion de la pandémie, la télémédecine représente également un terrain fertile pour augmenter la disponibilité et l'accessibilité des services de santé en français pour les CFASM.

Plus spécifiquement, la télémédecine représenterait un levier permettant:

1. de répondre aux défis des disparités territoriales et d'isolement;

2. de réduire les listes d'attentes et d'améliorer l'accessibilité aux soins de santé en français; et
3. de pallier à la pénurie de professionnel.le.s parlant la langue de la minorité et capables d'offrir des services en français aux CFASM.

Cost: Free

Registration: <https://www.torontomu.ca/cerc-migration/events/2022/06/in-conversation-with-tariq-modood/>

Join CERC Migration for a lunchtime seminar with Tariq Modood. Born in Karachi, Pakistan, to refugee parents, Tariq migrated to the UK with his family at the age of eight. He was the first to go to university from his working-class secondary school, survived years in academic exile, and broke through barriers to become known for his innovative critique of sociological theory.

Today, Tariq is an acclaimed expert in racism and exclusion, the founding director of the Centre for the Study of Ethnicity and Citizenship, Bristol University, and is widely published and regularly sought after for consultancies, fellowships and speaking engagements. He has been recognized as a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, awarded an MBE, made a member of the Academy of Social Sciences (UK) and elected a Fellow of the British Academy.

Tariq will share some of his founding influences, the key moments of serendipity or perseverance that changed his trajectory, and tell us why he is optimistic for a future of diversity and inclusion.

Climate Change and Migrations in Latin America and the Caribbean: Policy foresight and programmati

c response planning

Inter-American Development Bank (IDB); Moderated by Enrico del Castello (IRCC)

Virtual Workshop | Atelier virtuel (9:00 AM to 12:30 PM ET | 9h00 à 12h30 HE)

For invitations to the event or speaker details, please contact Kari Pries at karip@iadb.org.

To move forward preparatory work on the IDBG's institutional response to these issues, a slate of experts in the developing situation, operational and institutional policy responses, and legal considerations will be presenting their findings.

The objective of the forum is to discuss the current state of climate change and migrations planning. It will look to identify possible gaps and opportunities to advance scenario planning work at the IDBG that will allow the development of long-term response planning. Ideas from this workshop will feed into a Climate Change and Migrations in LAC publication by the Bank in 2022.

Gender-based violence against 2SLGBTQ+ people is pervasive but stigmatized; it's hyper-visible and invisibilized, known and neglected. We know violence against women is a shadow pandemic to COVID-19, but where does violence against queer and trans women and 2SLGBTQ+ people fit within this shadow pandemic? How are GBV services currently addressing GBV against 2SLGBTQ+ people and what can we do better?

Join us for a critical panel discussion about how the GBV sector can build better practices, trust, and coalitions with 2SLGBTQ+ communities and organizations. The panel will launch the Canadian Women's Foundation's Queering GBV Prevention and Intervention Report and Toolkit.

Les expériences de familles immigrantes dans des quartiers « hyper-divers »

Date and Time: Wednesday, June 22 12:00 pm - 1:00 pm

Prix: Gratuit

Inscription: Les expériences de familles immigrantes dans des quartiers « hyper-divers » Billets, mer, 22 juin 2022 à 12:00 | Eventbrite

Aperçu | Overview

Après plusieurs décennies de politiques prônant l'austérité urbaine et une croissance des inégalités socio-économiques dans les villes canadiennes, les familles nouvellement arrivées font face à des défis importants (p. ex., trouver un logement à prix abordable) et des conditions de précarité qui entravent leur établissement et intégration, avec des impacts significatifs sur leur bien-être et leur sentiment d'appartenance. L'objectif de cette communication sera de mettre en lumière les divers facteurs qui modulent les expériences de familles immigrantes installées dans trois quartiers « hyper-divers » dans la région d'Ottawa-Gatineau, dont les formes de soutien desquelles elles dépendent pour leur survie au quotidien.

Event Overview

In collaboration with the International Commissions of Jurists, Canada

“Canada’s resilience to disinformation has been tested these past years with concerted campaigns from foreign adversaries and a thriving domestic disinformation ecosystem – not to mention the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic. These dynamics were fully on display with the contentious February Freedom Convoy protests against vaccine mandates in Ottawa and other major Canadian cities. Our speakers will discuss the challenges and dangers to Canadian democracy posed by disinformation.

Disinformation has emerged as one of the fundamental challenges facing society. The expression “A lie gets half way around the world before the truth puts on its boots” has never been more accurate – the rapid development of social media and communication technologies has resulted in an environment that not only aids the spread of disinformation but incentivizes its creation. Disinformation has been used to create and exploit social divisions and to manipulate social discourse, including, and perhaps especially, surrounding politics and elections.”

Forging Partnerships to Make the Reintegration of Migrants More Effective and Sustainable

Date and Time: Monday, June 27 8:00 am - 10:00 am

Cost: Free

Registration: <https://www.migrationpolicy.org/events/partnerships-donors-local-actors-reintegration>

When: Monday, June 27, 2022, 2:00 P.M. CEST (Brussels, Berlin) / 1:00 P.M. BST (London) / 8:00 A.M. ET (New York, DC)

Where: MPI Europe Webinar

Speakers: Nassim Majidi, Founder and Director, Samuel Hall, Vojkan Milovanovic, Head of Office and Project Coordinator, Help – Hilfe zur Selbsthilfe, Mission to the Republic of Serbia, Ravenna Sohst, Associate Policy Analyst, MPI Europe, Abraham Tamrat, Regional Program Coordinator, International Organization for Migration (IOM) Regional Office in Dakar

Moderator: Camille Le Coz, Senior Policy Analyst, MPI and MPI Europe

“There is no "one-size-fits-all" reintegration model that can ensure success for returning migrants and the communities into which they are re-entering. Returnees have complex, interconnected economic, social, and psycho-social needs that typically cannot be covered by one single service provider. Returning migrants need to be able to access core public services (documentation, work opportunities, and health care) as well as context-specific local initiatives that will endure even after reintegration programs end. Yet while there is a growing acknowledgment that better partnerships between reintegration providers and local actors are needed to expand the variety of support measures available to returnees, there is no consensus as to how these connections (or "referrals") should be organized, what types of services referral partners should deliver (and what support they need to do so), and how outcomes can best be monitored over time.

This MPI Europe webinar will examine how to design referral mechanisms so that returnees receive the core services they need, while also ensuring support is embedded within local contexts (for instance delivered by trusted providers, or calibrated to specific ethnic, cultural, or linguistic needs). Speakers will explore questions around how major donors and providers can effectively partner with local actors, striking the right balance between formal reintegration programs (that are often more established but can be removed from local needs) and local initiatives (which may lack capacity but be better placed to cultivate trust with beneficiaries). How can programs be embedded within the fabric of local communities and "professionalized" to ensure that migrants do not fall through the cracks and outcomes are monitored over time?”

Growing Your Business: the importance of Indigenous partnerships

Date and Time: Tuesday, June 28 9:00 am - 10:00 am

Cost: Free

Registration: <https://www.apec-econ.ca/events/view/?event.id=200>

The path to truth and reconciliation coincides with inclusive economic development. Indigenous and non-Indigenous organizations can mutually benefit by bringing together their expertise, traditional knowledge and focus on sustainability. This will help to grow the Atlantic Canada's economy while protecting the environment.

Regional firms need to unlock the full potential of the Indigenous economy, employing Indigenous workers and collaborating with Indigenous entrepreneurs and businesses.

This session will feature a panel of speakers, including businesses that have partnered with Indigenous organizations. Speakers will describe the mutual benefits for Indigenous and non-Indigenous organizations and share their motivations for Indigenous partnerships, lessons learned, and opportunities for further collaboration.

There will be a Q&A period following the presentations.

When: Thursday, June 30, 2022 3:00 P.M. CEST (Brussels, Berlin) / 2:00 P.M. BST (London) / 9:00 A.M. ET (New York, DC)

Where: MPI Europe Webinar

Speakers: Karoline de la Hoz Zeitler, Director, OBERAXE (Spanish Observatory of Racism and Xenophobia), Ministry of Inclusion, Social Security, and Migration, Spain, Rossella Nicoletti, Senior Project and Policy Coordinator, Social Affairs, Eurocities, Paula Pincombe, Senior Director, Settlement and Integration Policy, Immigration, Refugees, and Citizenship Canada

Moderator:

Jasmijn Slootjes, Senior Policy Analyst, MPI Europe

“The COVID-19 pandemic and its fallout have triggered the perfect storm in migrant integration, with migrants and refugees experiencing disproportionate health and economic effects. They also upended the ability of policy makers and practitioners to respond in typical ways, given the halt to the delivery of in-person services and the forced shift online.

Marking the release of a Migration Policy Institute Europe report, this webinar will examine how government strategies, practices, and instruments of integration policymaking have adapted during the pandemic both in Europe and North America. How did policymakers ensure effective and agile responses in a context of COVID-induced disruption, and what can be learned to promote cost-effective integration policies moving forward?"

Trauma-informed care workshop for settlement and language staff

Registration: <https://mansomanitoba.silkstart.com/events/trauma-informed-care-workshop-for-settlement-and-language-staff>

“Overview

This workshop will provide a brief overview of vicarious trauma and its impact on front-line staff from the sector. Throughout the session, the facilitator will be sharing strategies on how to build resilience, and an opportunity will be provided for participants to learn how to practice effective and sustainable self and collective care.

Objectives:

- Understand vicarious trauma, its impact, and the importance of trauma-informed spaces/approaches
- Be able to recognize and respond to signs of distress
- Gain the confidence to practice effective & sustainable self and collective care
- Learn about new resources and supports available

Facilitator: This workshop will be facilitated by Kari McCluskey from Aurora Family Therapy Centre.

Kari McCluskey is a facilitator in the Vicarious Trauma and Resilience Initiative at Aurora Family Therapy Centre where she provides workshops and support for settlement service providers who are committed to creating positive transition and integration experiences for Canadian newcomers. In addition, she is a coordinator and instructor in the Faculty of Education at the University of Winnipeg and a graduate student in Peace and Conflict Studies at the University of Manitoba. A long-time advocate of empowering youth through education, service learning, and community integration, Kari spent several years in public education facilitating alternative learning programs for youth-at-risk.”

Registration: <https://www.eventbrite.ca/e/fostering-welcoming-and-inclusive-environments-for-immigrants-and-refugees>

Thu, 30 June 2022

1:30 PM – 2:30 PM EDT

Description:

“While rural and small centres see a smaller number of immigrants compared to urban centres, settlement in rural areas is growing and has significant impacts on a large number of communities across New Brunswick. Settlement in rural and small centres require a different approach and strategy, understanding the local context, its unique attributes and working in partnership are critical to successful settlement and integration work, for both immigrants and their new communities. Based on recent promising practices, such as the launch of New Brunswick Multicultural Council’s Rural Settlement Network, this session will offer insights into fostering welcoming and inclusive rural communities.

Speaker's bio:

Ginette Gautreau is a dedicated leadership professional currently serving as the Executive Director of New Brunswick Multicultural Council (NBMC). She brings over ten years of non-profit experience, specializing in intercultural and immigration work, women’s rights, international cooperation, and humanitarian assistance. Following years of living abroad in France and Mexico, she returned home to New Brunswick in 2015 and immediately joined NBMC.

Named Executive Director in 2021, Ginette has overseen and continues to develop a period of unprecedented growth for the organization. She is committed to making New Brunswick an increasingly inclusive, dynamic, and beautiful province, a welcoming place where people from all corners of the world can feel at home. Ginette holds a Master’s degree from the University of Ottawa in International Development & Global Studies, an honours degree from Mount Allison University in International Relations, and she is a proud member of the Wallace McCain Institute alumni network.”
